Antigua, April 22, 1768.

THE Iſland of Montſerrat has been in the utmoſt Conſternation, having been threatned with a very dangerous Inſurrection of the Negroes, which was however happily prevented by the Hand of Providence, and it is hoped is now entirely cruſhed. Upon the firſt Notice of it, Admiral Pye ſent down two of His Majeſty's Ships, and the Preſident of St. Chriſtopher's ordered a Detachment of fifty Men from the 68th Regiment. The Plot of theſe miſerable Wretches was deep laid, and muſt have been long projected, as they had furniſhed themſelves with great Store of Arms and Ammunition, which they had concealed in the Mountains. It was to have been carried into Execution upon St. Patrick's Day, which the principal White Inhabitants, chiefly Iriſh, uſually aſſembled together to commemorate. Thoſe Negroes that attended within Doors, were to have ſecured the Swords of the Gentlemen; and upon a Signal given, thoſe that were without, were to fire into the Room, and put every Man to Death, as he endeavoured to eſcape. The Savages had caſt Lots for the Ladies, who they intended to carry off the Iſland to Porto Rico in the Ships which then lay in the Harbour, and were to have been ſecured upon the ſame Signal. The Conſpiracy was diſcovered but a few Days before it was to have been carried into Execution, by a Woman who overheard two of the Conſpirators diſputing about the Diſpoſition of their Arms, and whoſe Evidence was ſcarcely credited, as ſhe was much in Liquor when ſhe gave it. Five of theſe Wretches have been already executed, and many more muſt ſuffer the ſame Fate.

Liſbon, May 21. On Monday laſt his moſt Faithful Majeſty went to Salvaterra, to take the Diverſion of Hunting; and returned to the Palace of Noſtra Senhora d'Ajude on Wedneſday.
